Scott county, Iowa, pays fifteen cents each for the scalps of gophers killed in that county. On the 29th ultimo the boys brought in two hundred and eighty-three, and, it is said, during the month the County Clerk had paid out more than one hundred dollars for gopher scalps. Dispatches have been received from United States officers on the Mexican border, giving accounts of the deplorable condition of affairs there. They state that since the fall of MAXI-MILIAN the conduct of the Mexicans has been overbearing, and that insult to the United States flag by Mexican officials is an every day A French paper mentions the fact that two grains of alum to a pint of water will clarify water which is unfit to drink, and the taste of he alum will not be perceived. A French chemist in Algiers shows that muddy water will become potable in the course of from seven to seventeen minutes by adding half a grain of potassic alum for every quart of water. The Russian journal, the Voice, states that the Emperor Napoleon, on taking leave of the Czar, expressed a wish in favor of a general

European disarmament. The same journal advocates the establishment of a permanent Amphicyonic Council, to which all serious disputes between the Governments of Europe should be referred for decision. A school has been recently opened at Worms in Germany, for the education of those desirous of learning the manufacture of beer and vinegar. Four months is the time required to enable a person to become a graduate, and it has already twenty-four students hard at work at the science of brewing the wholesome and highly-prized Lagerbier. The Academie des Jeux Floraux, which was established by CLEMENCE ISAURE, in 1828, lately celebrated its five hundred and fortyfourth annual meeting. It is said to preserve smeng its archives over twenty thousand poems in her praise, the said poems having been written at the rate of forty a year since the first establishment of the Academie.

In the centre of Hancock county (Miss.) there is an immense almost impenetrable swamp called the Devil's Swamp, which is described as a tangled maxe of cypress, vines, creeping parasites, mud, bog, water, abounding in alligators, moccasin and cotton-mouth snakes, scorpions, musquitoes, bear, deer, &c. This wilderness is said never to have been explored beyond its outskirts. The Federal Government will cost the New Dominion in salaries $115,000 per annum, in-

The largest manufacturers in the fourth district of New York city are P. & G. LURILLARD, tobacconists, who pay from $70,000 to $90,000 per annum tax; C. H. LILLIENTHAL, who pays from $20,000 to $30,000 per month; and R. L. & A. STEART, who pay from $10,000 to $12,000 per month. There are also many wholesale dealers who pay special taxes on sales, such as are received, and CLAPLIE, who pays from $40,000 to $50,000 per year. Brewers pay frem $8000 to $10,000 per month, and sometimes $12,000 to $18,00. Holland is said to be negotiating for the sale of its colony of Dutch Guiana to England, but England holds off on account of the high price. This colony is a constant less to the Dutch tressury, and is in the market for a purchaser. Efforts will next, it is thought, be made by the Dutch to sell their West Indian colonies, which are also a source of pecuniary loss. Negotiations have recently been reopened between Switzerland and Holland in regard to a commercial treaty, and the Swiss Government, it is understood, have now taken the necessary measures to place Dutch Jews living in Switzerland on the same footing as Christians.

We have had a good deal of gossip about the relations between the Emperor of France and the Czar during the visit of the latter to Paris; but the correspondent of the Springfield Republican is the first to mention the fact that the two magnates were scarcely on speaking terms during the Czar's visit, and that the Empress Eugania was compelled to interfere on one or two occasions to preserve the peace. Although the two potentates were frequently seen together in public, the want of cordiality in their intercourse was very apparent, and was noticed by a great many people. It is said that the expense of receiving the crowd of Kings in Paris has caused considerable growling among that portion of the French people

A PAPER READ before the Royal Society London, by Mr. ERASMUS WILSON, has thrown new light on the question as to what causes the sudden whitening of the hair, often produced by fright or profound grief. He cites a case in which the hair was colored white and brown alternately from end to end. The white segments were about one-half the length of the brown, and the two together measured about one third of a line. Under the microscope the colors were reversed, and it was obvious that the opacity of the white portion was due to a vast accumulation of air globules packed closely together in the fibrous structure of the hair, as well as in the medulla. There was no absence of pigment but the accumulation of air globules veiled and obscured the normal color and structure. Mr. Wilson suggested the possibility of the brown portion being the day growth and the white portion the night growth. He also said, in reference to the sudden blanching of the whole hair, of which there were many cases on record, that during the prevalence of a violent nervous shock, the normal fluids of the hair might be drawn inward toward the body, in unison with the generally and that the vacuities left by this process of friends. exhaustion might be suddenly filled with atmospheric air. An interesting discussion followed the reading of the paper. Dr. SHAR-KEY alluded to a recent case of sudden blanching of the hair reported by Dr. Landois, of certained to be the result of an accumulation of air globules in the fibrous substance of the THE PROPRIETOR of the Philadelphia Ledger

The following is from the published account of the proceedings: The hour fixed for the dinner was half-past one. As the signal was given the long lines of the employees and their guests commenced filing along the pavement of Sixth street and Chesnut street, and down the stairways into the dining-room. There were one hundred and thirty-five carriers and assistants, sixty compositors and "subs," with their foremen, proof-readers and copyholders; twenty pressmen and feeders, with their superintendent of machinery; twenty-two folders and counters, with the night clerk. ten office clerks, with the cashier; sixteen general employees, including engineers, machinist carpenter, watchmen, paper-wetters and turners, office-boys, &c. ; four stereotypers ; thirty job office hands, with their superintendent and foreman, and twelve editors and reporters. These number three hundred and nine who were present, and with about one hundred and wenty invited guests, making four hundred and twenty-nine who participated in the dinner and celebration in the press-room. This is independent of the newsboys, who filed down the southern stairway into the gallery set apart for them, two and two. Then came the dinner, with fountains of cool and refreshing, but not intoxicating, drinks, and instrumental and rocal music, and speech-making, and jovial conversation and general hilarity.

We can remember nothing like it in former years. In every instance, so far as we have observed, the crime is instigated by a desire for plunder or the gratification of beastly passions. Nowhere do these outrages partake of a political character. They do not proceed from a spirit of retaliation or revenge, and can only be attributed to a growing demoralization among the negro population, consisting in a large degree of those who lately were slaves, but now are released from almost every form of restraint. Not only this, but the negroes are often the dupes of mischief-makers, itinerant lecturers, A. T. The signs of increasing social disorganization manifested in the prevalence of the worst forms of atrocity-lust, murder and rapine-cannot be regarded with entire composure. The final lestiny of the black race now in America presents a problem, of which, at this early day, > no definite solution is offered. THE FOLLOWING FIGURES are from the last Prussian census, taken in 1864: There were, their own fortunes. at that time, in round numbers, 19,250,000 inhabitants, or 763,000 more than in 1861. Of these 11,700,000 were Protestants (being 438,-000 more than in 1861), and 7,200,000 Catholics (being an increase of 294,000); in other words, the increase among Protestants was 3.38 per cent., and among Catholics 4.45 per cent. In the year 1864 there were 479,000 births among the Protestants, while there were 302,-500 among Catholics, in spite of there being 6706 priests devoted to celibacy, and 5259 religious of both sexes. Further, out of the 479,000 births among Protestants, 47,960 were illegitimate, while of the 302,500 births among Catholics, only 16,500 were illegitimate. This great difference is maintained thus through the different provinces. Thus the proportion of illegitimate births in Brandenburg was 12.05 per cent. among Protestants and 8.40 among Catholics; Schleswig, 10.35 against 10.07; Pomerania, 10.35 against 9.31; Saxony, 10.35 against 6.05; Prussia, 9.67 against 7.45, and so on. The next census will probably give 25,-000,000, even if there is no further annexation beyond what the Schleswig Holstein war, and the war with Austria and her allies last year

GFN. SICKLES LETTER.

We have not deemed it wise or become ing to discuss the probable action of Griefswald, in Virchow's Archiv, which was as- Congress. With the issue which has brought the National Legislature together at so inopportune a time, under such in auspicious circumstances, the people of the South have had nothing to do. Fairly and faithfully have we done, or rather were we doing the duty imposed upon us and if like the victim of old we were to roll the stone up the hill only to see it tauntingly thrown back, all that was left us was to bear patiently the exercise of this tormen ting tyranny. But not only has the ac tion of Congress so far indicated on the part of the North, a just recognition of our position, but there are evidences that there are those in power who comprehend the opportunity for statesmanship which the present crisis affords.

Our readers can scarcely fail to under stand that we refer specially to the letter from Gen. SICKLES to Senator TRUMBULL which we published yesterday. What we could not say, he has said, and his words are weighty with the experience of one who has perhaps more successfully than any of his colleagues carried out the provisions of the Reconstruction Act. His fidelity to the Republican party not the most extreme radical can doubt, and the condition of the Military District which he commands is the best proof of the practical wisdom of the administration.

His letter may be considered in two points of view; first, as the testimony of the most competent of witnesses of the condition of the State under his command, and, second, as the suggestion of the highest practical authority as to the best mode of reconstruction.

Considered as testimony, we can refer to t as conclusive proof that our people have done their duty; that they have met fairly the responsibilities which the Act imposes, more thorough and more prompt, the nore we were trusted with our own govern-

As a suggestion, it can scarcely be overvalued. For two years General SICKLES has been in command in the Carolinas; he has had ample opportunity to observe; has been brought into immediate contact with all classes and all interests, and has proved, by results, that the spirit of the people and the requirements of the law, are not

With this knowledge-with a deeper interest than any other living man in the successful administration of the Act-he advises that the universal suffrage which has been enforced, should be accompanied by an universal amnesty; that if reconstruction is to be effected, that the best elements of society are the material with which it result from the exclusion of the wealth the character, and the intelligence of the State.

It is clear that that is not reconstruction which places class in antagonism to class-which excludes from the public service those who are fitted by education and experience to direct public affairs wisely, and that to disfranchise all who naturally control is simply to put an inexperienced, uneducated majority at the mercy of that reaction which the minority, possessed of all the real strength of society,

General SICKLES recognizes further that among the wisest and best men of the South are those whom the late experiment of secession has completely satisfied-who consider that a great revolution has opened the field of new ideas and new habits, but who will not interfere actively in public so long as that action is supposed to be dic tated simply by the selfish desire to restore

Such men he sees are the most efficient instruments in the reconstruction which the country desires, and are the surest mediators between the old and the new. He sees what is the fact, that in the late war the great mass of the people were one, and that any disfranchisement which is consistent must include nearly the whole of the intelligence and character of the South, and that no reconstruction could be sound based upon such an exclusion. He says distinctly what is equally true, that such a disfranchisement would place the South under the control of those who are not fitted to direct it truly, and that the true interest of the whole country requires that when these States are restored, they should be restored in the fulness of such wealth, intelligence and character as they possessthat if they are to be the equals of the North in the Senate, the better fitted they are for that equality, the better for the

Whether opinions so sound, and coming ven from so high an authority, will be respected, we cannot say, but whether treated with the consideration they deserve or not, we acknowledge our obligation to Gen. SICKLES for placing upon record in this letter a vindication of the character and position of the States he commands, which history will not reglect.
